LYMAN LAKE
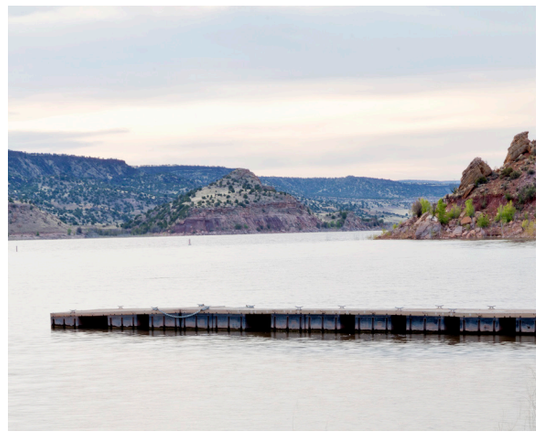
STATE PARK



Created by damming the Little Colorado River, Lyman Lake State Park is a 1,200-acre park at an elevation of 6,000 feet. It is fed by snowmelt from the slopes of Mount Baldy and Escudilla Mountain, the second and third highest mountains in Arizona.

Because of its size, Lyman Lake is one of the few bodies of water in northeastern Arizona with no size restrictions on boats. The west end of the lake is buoyed off as a no wake area (5 mph) so anglers can fish without disturbance from watercrafts. The fishery consists of walleye, channel catfish, and largemouth bass. The large remainder of the lake is open for all other types of watersports.

Summer days with temperature highs in the 80s to low 90s are perfect for fishing, swimming, leisure boating, waterskiing, hiking, or just relaxing.

Cabins

The park has eight camping cabins that overlook Lyman Lake available for reservation. Each cabin has a covered porch, a full-sized bed, two sets of bunk beds, a table with chairs, electricity, lights, heating and air conditioning, and a locking door. Campers must supply their own linens or sleeping bags. Restrooms and showers are within walking distance. Cabins sleep up to six people.

Hiking Trails

Peninsula Petroglyph Trail: A 0.25-mile self-guided trail is accessible from the campground and is open during daylight hours. The trail requires a mild climb. A number of petroglyphs and interpretive signs are easily visible from the trail. This trail connects to several loop trails, totaling 1.5 miles of additional trail around the edge and top of the hill.

Buffalo Trail: A 2-mile trail, named for a group of bison that were once kept near the front entrance. Trailheads are located at the park entrance and on either side of the B Loop campsites. This hike requires accessing some steep, vertical inclines and steps.

Pointe Trail: A short 1-mile trail that starts at the north end of the day-use area and joins two loops on top of the hill that overlooks the point near the group use area. Moderate inclines and some steps are found at the beginning of this trail.
